Eric Rupert Dibbs
The Eric Rupert Dibbs Story
Compiled from his screeds of notes , by his Grand-Daughter Joanne Gwynn (Alias Howard), (Nee Dibbs), in 2009.

"My family have often pressed me to produce an autobiography which would, I know, cover a vital personal involvement in the exciting 20th century, which has provided such amazing changes in the life of Man"
I can vividly remember the days of gaslight, horse trams, cable cars and steam trams in and around Sydney. Also the departure of mounted troops for the Boer War and the return of troops after the war in worn and faded uniforms.
The Foundation of the Commonwealth and the illuminations, the fireworks, the reviews of the Australian troops and units of The Royal Navy which accompanied that joyous event are bright in my mind." (ERD)

1894 -Eric Rupert Dibbs was born in Lytton Street, North Sydney (opposite St. Leonards Park) in a large two storied semi-detached house at 2pm on the ninth of March, 1894 on a hot day (according to his mother, as her Father was an Astrologer and had noted the exact time). The eldest son of Sydney Reginald Dibbs and Jessie Emily Fletcher.
[NSW BDM Birth Record 31409/1894 St Leonards]

E. R.Dibbs moved to Lavender Bay to a house near the water named "Sunnyside. However when he was two years of age he developed Bronchitis and the Doctor declared he should be taken away from the sea to a Western Suburb where " The fencing wire did not rust"....
